GOLD RUSH, 1980 STYLE

As the price of gold has soared, necklaces have become hot items--to steal. Unfortunately, most victims are wearing their chains when they are stolen.

"Necklace grabs" have been reported throughout the Los Angeles area. Grabs at other campuses have occurred in perimeter parking lots or on sidewalks next to dormitories, usually during daylight. Males as well as females have been victims.

The methods of operation vary. In some cases, the thief walks past the victim, suddenly reaches out, and takes the necklace; or, the thief approaches from behind, grabs the necklace, and runs away. Other times, the victim is sitting in a car at a stoplight or stop sign when the thief reaches in an open window, grabs the necklace, and flees.

The best way to avoid being the victim of a "necklace grab" is to leave your chain in a secure place. Do not wear it unless you feel safe in doing so. When you do wear your necklace, take precautions.

1. Look alert. Walk assertively.
2. Maintain body space. Keep your distance from others as you walk. Don't hesitate to move away or even cross the street if a suspicious person gets too close.

If your necklace is grabbed, do not resist. Call Campus Escort and Emergency Service or the Pasadena Police immediately with the suspect's description and direction of travel.

Minutes count. The sooner you call, the greater chance officers have of finding the suspect and recovering stolen property.

NEW ARRIVALS IN THE BOOKSTORE include:

Biblical Studies

Phillip Sigal, The Emergence of Contemporary Judaism, Vol. 1: The Foundations of Judaism from Biblical Origins to the Sixth Century A.D., Part 1 and Part 2, PTMS 29 and 29a (Pickwick)--the first two parts of a new, extensive work on Judaism, Part 1 dealing with the origins of early Judaism to the separation of Christianity, and Part 2 dealing with the rise of rabbinic Judaism.

Church History

Dominic J. O'Meara (ed.), Neoplatonism and Christian Thought (State University of New York)--essays on the influence of neoplatonism on patristic, byzantine, medieval, renaissance and modern thought.

R. Baine Harris (ed.), The Structure of Being: A Neoplatonic Approach (State University of New York)--essays which argue that neoplatonism has a definable structure and is not merely religious mysticism.

Theology

Russell F. Aldwinckle, Jesus--A Savior or the Savior? Religious Pluralism in Christian Perspective (Mercer University)--the author of More than a Man makes a case against modern tendencies toward religious syncretism and for the uniqueness of the Christian faith.

D. Scott Rogo, Miracles: A Parascientific Inquiry into Wondrous Phenomena (Dial)--in a survey of many Christian wonders, from the Shroud of Turin to the stigmata of Padre Pio, the author argues that miracles are actually generated by the formidable powers of the human mind.

Comparative Religion and Anthropology

R. L. Gordon (ed.), Myth, Religion and Society (Cambridge)--essays exploring different aspects of the relation between Greek myth and Greek thought between the Archaic period and the Hellenistic period.

Tadashi Fukutake, Japanese Society Today, Second Edition (University of Tokyo)--an analysis of the problems facing modern Japanese society, which has achieved impressive economic goals at the expense of social development.

Marc Auge, The Anthropological Circle (Cambridge)--the author argues that the intellectual differences between anthropologists are intrinsically derived from intellectual divisions within anthropology itself.

Nawal El Saadawi, The Hidden Face of Eve: Women in the Arab World (Beacon)--a vivid picture of what it means to grow up female in the Islamic world.

Issues

Arthur Wallis, The Radical Christian (Revell)--a pioneer of "the House Church Movement" in Britain speaks of radical discipleship.

Jerome Deshusses, The Eighth Night of Creation (Dial)--praised as a successor to Swift, Nietzsche, Orwell, and Huxley, this book offers one of the most terrifying accounts of the Apocalypse ever written.

Spirituality

Charles Cummings, The Mystery of the Ordinary (Harper & Row)--a Trappist monk discovers God in the simplest daily activities.

Matthew and Dennis Linn, Deliverance Prayer (Paulist)--nine essays exploring deliverance prayer in tradition, in practice, and in the light of contemporary psychology.

- Theodore E. Dobson, How to Pray for Spiritual Growth: A Practical Handbook of Inner Healing (Paulist)--ten types of prayer to foster spiritual growth.
- Richard J. Hauser, In His Spirit: A Guide to Today's Spirituality (Paulist)--a meditation on and exploration of the person and the Spirit.
- John Killinger, Prayer: The Act of Being with God (Word)--answers to the practical questions of newcomers to prayer.
- Warren W. Wiersbe (ed.), Giant Steps (Baker)--daily devotions from spiritual giants of the past.

Psychology and Counseling

- Jack C. Anchin and Donald J. Kiesler (ed.), Handbook of Interpersonal Psychotherapy (Pergamon)--in one place are gathered together the major approaches to psychotherapy which have in common an interpersonal focus.
- Theodore Millon, Disorders of Personality, DSM III, Axis II (Wiley)--a companion to the DSM-III detailing the components of the new Axis II Personality Disorders.
- David Statt, Dictionary of Psychology (Barnes & Noble)--clear and succinct definitions of the terms most commonly encountered in psychology courses.
- Richard P. Walters, How to Be a Friend: People Want to Be Friends with ... (Gospel Light)--how to deal successfully with sensitive issues such as trust, touching and confronting.
- Stewart Emery, The Owner's Manual for Your Life (Doubleday)--a maintenance guide to the human spirit.

Marriage and Family

- R. Lofton Hudson, Now That Our Kids Have Children (Word)--a helpful guidebook which confronts the need for better relationships between grandparents and their children.
- Yehuda Nir and Bonnie Maslin, Loving Men for All the Right Reasons (Dial)--a book for women on the problems of intimacy.

Miscellaneous

- Kathryn Spink, The Miracle of Love (Harper & Row)--the story, with pictures, of the work of Mother Teresa of Calcutta.
